U.S. Planning To Put Man On Moon In Decade

WASHINGTON (AP) - James E. Webb said Monday the government still expects to land a man on the moon in this decade barring an unexpected eventuality.

Webb, who heads the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said he meant such an eventuallity as finding out that men could not live and work at zero gravity.

Webb said the administration's requested $5.7 billion budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 permits NASA to maintain its present target dates for the manned lunar flight program, but is set at the lowest level at which this can be done. He discussed the budget request in testimony before the House Space Committee.

Webb said details of what was learned by the Mariner experiment last year, in which a probe flew close to Venus, would be made public Tuesday.

He said the announcement had been delayed to allow the scientists involved to bring the new knowledge to a form and point where he could sign his name to it for publication. Webb said "Every unit of the system to land men on the moon is now under contract.

How the investor

acquires stocks and bonds (and what the beginner may do wrong)

There are many ways to go about investing in stock But probably only one way that's thoroughly sensible.

Begin with your own goals. You may want to own stock primarily to have extra income from dividends. Or your main interest may be in stock that seems to have good possibilities for growth in value. If safety is your goal, you may be more interested in high quality bonds. The beginner sometimes takes a hazardous route. The veteran usually takes a wiser one.

Beginner: Hears about a "good thing" from his wife's uncle and off he goes. It's important, he feels, to buy the stock immediately-before other people in on the "tip" lift the price out of sight.

Veteran: Selects investments carefully. Goes after facts. What does the company sell? What is its recent record? What dividend has it been paying? How much is it likely to earn per share? Anything new?

To get this - and other - information he probably asks the help of his Member Firm broker. Then he weighs the risk, well aware that a stock is only as good as the company. That stock and bond prices go both down and up. That dividends or interest may be omitted.

Beginner: Invests all the money he can dig up. Veteran: Apportions his income carefully. Makes sure living expenses come first. Has made provision for any emergency that might bring sudden large expenses. Considers how much of the rest he might reasonably invest.

Beginner: Is unaware of the real differences between brokers. Veteran: Realizes that no broker is infallible. But he also knows that if he selects a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange he will have available to him useful experience and knowledge from a firm subject to the regulations of the Exchange. And that the firm's Registered Representatives have had to meet Exchange qualifications for knowledge of the securities business.

If you like the idea of investing systematically with as little as $40 every three months (up to $1000 a month) through the Monthly Investment Plan, send the coupon below for a free copy of "DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS," which describes the Plan and contains much additional valuable information.

At the time I purchased this acreage it was for investment only but one trip out there changed my mind. We now intend to retire at Rio Grande Estates in that it offers everything we want. U.S. Planning To Put Man On Moon In Decade

WASHINGTON (AP) - James E. Webb said Monday the government still expects to land a man on the moon in this decade barring an unexpected eventuality.

Webb, who heads the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said he meant such an eventuallity as finding out that men could not live and work at zero gravity.

Webb said the administration's requested $5.7 billion budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 permits NASA to maintain its present target dates for the manned lunar flight program, but is set at the lowest level at which this can be done.

He discussed the budget request in testimony before the House Space Committee.

Webb said details of what was learned by the Mariner experiment last year, in which a probe flew close to Venus, would be made public Tuesday.

He said the announcement had been delayed to allow the scientists involved to bring the new knowledge to a form and point where he could sign his name to it for publication.

Webb said "Every unit of the system to land men on the moon is now under contract.'

Original Spectacular To Be Given

Members of Kappa Xi cast of Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatic fraternity, are rehearsing nightly for their original spectacular, "Standing Room Only," to be presented April 1-2, at 8:15 o'clock on the stage of Compton Hall, Frostburg State College campus.

The show depicts a history of the American theatre from the turn of the century to the present. In the nature of an extravaganza, it includes dramatic sequences from such celebrated playwrights as Eugene O'Neill, Noel Coward, George Bernard Shaw, and Moss Hart. Glimpses of vaudeville and melodrama, the Ziegfeld "Follies," and musical highlights from "Show Boat," "The King and I," "My Fair Lady," "Camelot," and "Gypsy" are featured. Samuel Huffer, Alpha Psi president, is general chairman and choreographer. He is assisted by Bonnie Hensen, dance; and Kenneth Moreland and Bonnie Vance. vocal soloists. Robert Hyde is scenic artist.

No. 253 A century ago this winter, 1862-63, John M. Bozeman and associates were beating down one of the historic Western cattle trails. The initial route stretched from Montana through Wyoming to Colorado. The Bozeman Trail subsequently provided the shortest and easiest route for goldseekers to "diggings" discovered in 1859.

The purpose of Bozeman was not to facilitate digging for nuggets or panning for "dust," but to sell cattle. Much trail-blazing was done in the 1860s by ranchers intent on opening up markets for the beef, as well as the hides, horns and bones of their longhorns The Civil War had not halted the procession of men from the northern states to the West; in fact, it had been a place of escape for some from the recruiters and drafters. They had to eat and beef was more trans portable afoot than in barrels, pickled.

Bozeman, Mont., keeps alive the name of the man who opened the trail from there to gold-diggings, to the benefit of both miners and ranchers.

School Dropout Progress Noted By Gov. Barron

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)-Gov. W. W. Barron told some 400 high school juniors Monday that West Virginia is "making headway" in its movement to curb the high school dropout problems. Barron told the students, in

Charleston to participate in the 13th annual "Know Your State Government Day" program, that the number of students quitting classes, "while still much too high, is being reduced substantialty."

"Additional progress against the problem would result from the educational program which I presented to the current session of the Legislature and which is now under consideration," Barron

The governor said during a luncheon address that dropouts, "despite repeated warnings, apparently fail to realize how shortsighted they really are in not continuing their education.

Barron noted that the U.S. Census Bureau estimated that a high school diploma "is worth more than a quarter-million dollars in lifetime earnings.

As part of the day's program, the group visited each chamber of the Legislature and posed RC Bloodmobile questions to a panel composed of members of the State Board of Visit March 5 Public Works and State Supreme Court president Thornton G.

School Dropout Progress Noted By Gov. Barron

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)-Gov. W. W. Barron told some 400 high school juniors Monday that West Virginia is "making headway" in its movement to curb the high school dropout problems.

Barron told the students, in Charleston to participate in the 13th annual "Know Your State Government Day" program, that the number of students quitting classes. "while still much too high, is being reduced substanti-

"Additional progress against the problem would result from the educational program which I presented to the current session of the Legislature and which is now under consideration," Barron

The governor said during a luncheon address that dropouts, "despite repeated warnings, apparently fail to realize how shortsighted they really are in not continuing their education."

Barron noted that the U.S. Census Bureau estimated that a high school diploma "is worth more than a quarter-million dollars in lifetime earnings."

As part of the day's program, the group visited each chamber of the Legislature and posed RC Bloodmobile questions to a panel composed of members of the State Board of Public Works and State Supreme Visit March 5 Court president Thornton G.

Another Look At The Alliance

Little of the fanfare which accompanied establishment of the Alliance for Progress two years ago can be heard today in Washington. It is not that the United States has not been able to accomplish anything with the billions of dollars already spent and committed, but that so little has been accomplished for so much.

Investment capital is the key to Latin American economic rehabilitation, not the creation of more channels for government-togovernment aid. But investors have a wide opportunity in the modern world.

Many enticements sparkle in West Europe, Japan and North America to woo capital from politically unstable lands, and it isn't merely a matter of difference in interest rates. Currency stabilization is a prime consideration.

A frankly pessimistic view of the Alliance for Progress under present conditions comes from J. Peter Grace, president of the W. R. Grace chemical and steamship company and chairman of a special committee set up by the Commerce Department to study the alliance program. Under its present size and form, according to Grace, the alliance "cannot succeed and we are in a great danger of suffering a major defeat to our strategic interests in this hemisphere."

In answer to proposals that what is needed is an expansion of U. S. contribution to the program, Grace replied: "The manner in which the aid is to be made available—mainly on a government-to-government basis - raises extreme doubt as to the effectiveness of any amount of aid in attaining our objective."

With the aid program nearly one-fifth of the way through what was to be a decade of progress, some significant evidences of advancement should be apparent by now. There are none, and some of the recipient countries today possess less investment capital than when the program started.

To proceed blindly in the same direction is to invite disaster.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Kennedy And T. Roosevelt

It is a cause for great satisfaction to know President John F. Kennedy is a close student of the life and times of Theodore Roosevelt. The Kennedy admiration for "T.R." was plainly manifest when a reminder went out from the White House to the Marines at Camp Lejeune that they would do well to follow the old Rough Rider's recipe for hardihood-a three-day hike of fifty miles, with double-time during the last half mile and a 300-yard sprint as a conclusion.

Well, now that the President is busy boning up on Teddy Roosevelt's philosophy and accomplishments, we may look to see an improvement in the way we handle our Caribbean policy. Teddy was always an activist when it came to thinking about such strategic spots as Cuba and Panama and the rest of Latin

There was that time, for example, when Germany and Great Britain, in order to collect debts, decided to intervene in Venezuela. Working in concert, these two mighty European powers seized some Venezuelan ships in 1902 and instituted a blockade of the Venezuelan coast. This was clearly a violation of the Monroe Doctrine, so Teddy Roosevelt added his own famous "corollary" to the doctrine and ordered our battle fleet to maneuver off the British island of Trinidad. The Germans and the British promptly backed down.

Then there was the matter of the Panama Canal. "T.R." was not scrupulously ethical about this - he boasted at one time that he had "taken" the canalbut the Colombian government, which owned Panama when we first proposed to cut a waterway from the Atlantic to the Pacific through the isthmus, had agreed at one point to let us go ahead with the construction. A treaty-the Hay-Herran Treaty-had actually been signed in Washington giving the U.S. perpetual control of a zone across the isthmus and guaranteeing an annual payment to the Colombia government. Shortly after the treaty had been signed, however, the Colombians repudiated their Ambassador. When the Colombian Senate refused to ratify the treaty, T.R. put on his fighting clothes. With American warships standing "protectively" offshore in isthmian waters, a "revolution" took place in Panama - and a newly created Panamanian government went on to give the U.S. permission to build the canal.

Roosevelt was severely criticized in later years for alleged duplicity in the affair of the Panamanian Revolution, but he always denied that he had done anything wrong. "I did not lift my finger to incite the revolutionists," he said. "I simply ceased to stamp out the different revolutionary fuses that were already burning." It is doubtful, of course, that this tells the whole story of the manipulation that went on behind the scenes, but the fact remains that construction of the Canal was subsequently carried through to completion and the whole world has benefited for many years thereby.

Even before he was President, Teddy Roosevelt was a Caribbean activist. The minute that the U.S. had decided that we must go to war to free the Cubans from the oppression of Spain, Teddy resigned his Washington job as Assistant Secretary of the Navy to organize his regiment of Rough Riders. He performed valiantly at the battle for San Juan Hill, leading the Rough Riders in a famous charge. Some people thought Roosevelt's action near San Juan vainglorious, and Finley Peter Dunne's Mr. Dooley later observed that Teddy's book about the campaign should be called "Alone in Cubia." But no matter what Roosevelt's motives may have been, it was obvious that he had the will to "do what it takes" to keep foreign powers out of the Caribbean area.

So, now that John F. Kennedy is reading up on the life and times of Theodore Roosevelt, I am sure that Castro's days are numbered, and that Khrushchev will eventually get the yo-heave-ho out of the Western Hemisphere. To be sure, the chance of detonating a possible atomic holocaust must have its restraining effect on Kennedy's movements, but the President has by no means exhausted the mileage that can be had out of such things as economic blockade. Teddy Roosevelt's ancestry was partly Dutch, which perhaps made him extra stubborn about getting his way. However, there is an old saying that "it takes the Irish to beat the Dutch." Before J.F.K.'s first term is out we confidently expect to see the Monroe Doctrine brought really up to date by the addition of the Kennedy Corollary to the Roosevelt Corollary.

'Here Comes One Of Those Defensive Weapons'

Dominican Republic Ends 31 Years Of U.S.-Backed Tyranny This Week

WASHINGTON - The end of thirty-one years of Tyranny will be celebrated on a little island in the Caribbean this week when Dr. Juan Bosch, a poet, becomes President of the Dominican Republic. He will be the first freely elected President in that troubled country since Rafael Trujillo, a U. S. Marine-trained sergeant, set up a dictatorship thirty-two years

And the Senate friends of Gov. Nelson Rockfeller who seem hellbent for war over Cuba should take a careful look at the case history of the Dominican Repub-

What has caused unrest and the danger of Communism in that country, and in Venezuela, and in Haiti, and in many other Latin countries - as in Cuba - is the bloody hand of a dictator in almost every case - except Haiti recently - the dictators have been supported by the United with his family, while angling for a job with Trujillo. Col. Gordon Moore, brother-in-law of Mrs. Eisenhower, was a partner of Trujillo's in importing molasses into the United States. William D. Pawley, one of the most blatant critics of Kennedy in Cuba, conducted various deals with Trujillo. Henry Holland, Assistant Secretary of State under Eisenhower, got on the payroll of the Dominican dictator at a mining consultant, also worked with dictator Perez Jimenez of Venezuela handling various oil problems.

Reps. Donald Jackson, Calif., and Gardner Withrow, Wis., both Republicans, made various speeches praising Trujillo. Withrow once told the House of Representaitves that Trujillo's government was more democratic than the U. S. Congress. Both Withrow and Jackson had received free trips to the Dominican Republic.

Various Congressmen who had junketed to Trujillo City with their families at the expense of the dictator came back to vote him increased sugar quotas while the democracies around the Caribbean got less sugar.

Fanning Communism

Latin Americans read the newspapers. They know the score. And when North Americans in high position throw their weight behind dictators who have been guilty of murder, kidnaping, and torture, merely because they get free trips or financial benefits, it destroys confidence in American democracy. It also feeds the fires of agitators on the other side.

This, together with the wide chasm between the rich and the poor in Latin America is what has made Latin America the most dangerous area for revolution in the world today.

Note - The Kennedy administration's indictment of Igor Cassini for handling public relations for Trujillo, unregistered, had important impact in Latin America. The fact that Kennedy cracked down on a man who had married the daughter of one of the Kennedy's closest friends, the Charles Wrightsmans of Palm Beach, put President Kennedy squarely in the camp of the anti-

Catholic School Compromise

The wires have been humming between the White House and

Capitol Hill to patch up a compromise on aid to education which will appease Catholic opponents of Kennedy's school bill.

Adam Clayton Powell, the Congressman from Harlem, chairman of the Education and Labor Committee, has proposed that Congress let the states decide whether federal money should be used for Catholic and parochial schools. Powell is pastor of the largest Baptist church in the world, the Abyssinian Baptist Church of Harlem. Various Catholics on his committee have supported the compromise

However, the White House has not. President Kennedy feels that this is merely passing the buck back to the Supreme Court and to local communities.

In heavily populated Catholic states, the legislatures would vote federal money for Catholic Schools while in the South and in Protestant states, they would not. This, in turn, would come back to the Supreme Court in a tangle

The Constitution is quite clear. Kennedy feels, that federal money cannot be appropriated for elementary parochial schools.

Note - Chief opponent of the Kennedy school bill is Cardinal Spellman of New York, in the past the biggest recipient of contributions from the Kennedy Foundation.

Merry-Go-Round

It was only a few years ago that Maurice Chevalier was sentenced to be shot by a French Maquis firing squad on a charge of collaborating with the Nazis. Paramount Pictures' David Rose heard about it, contacted Eisenhower aide Jock Lawrence and, on an order from Eisenhower, Chevalier was saved. Last week in New York, Chevalier was due to earn $75,000 for six weeks of performances. Charlie Chaplin, now living in self-imposed exile in Switzerland, is dickering to stage a comeback in Yugoslavia. He is ready to write, direct, and act in a Yugoslavia movie. WASHINGTON

The President is currently considering whether to move additional units of the Sixth Fleet into the Red Sea. The movement has been proposed by the U.S. Fleet Commander in the Mediterranean, in fulfillment of U.S. pledges to Saudi Arabia.

These pledges are in question, in turn, because of the signs that an attack on Saudi Arabia is at least being considered, if not actively prepared, by Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser. Some months ago, Nasser established a bridgehead on the oilrich Arabian Peninsula, by promoting a Nasserite coup d'etat in the imamate of Yemen, and then rushing to the aid of the new republican government. The Yemenis, disliking the prospect of subjugation by Egypt, rallied to their royal family and organized a determined guerrilla resistance. The popular resistance was so to pour no less than 20,000 troops into this tiny country, and these Egyptian forces are now the sole support of the puppet Yemeni regime. Nonetheless, the resistance has continued, leaving Nasser in a position identical with that of the French in Algeria before the fighting ended. As the Algerian resistance fighters had bases across the Moroccan and Tunisian borders, so the Yemeni guerrillas have been allowed to use bases in Saudi Arabia. In sum. Nasser has the same motives for wishing to attack the Saudis that the French had for wishing to invade Tunisia and Morocco.

The signs that Nasser may yield to this temptation are rather impressive. To begin with, he has frankly told at least two recent American visitors that he intended to wind up the Yemen affair by "going to the root of the matter" in Saudi Arabia; and he has added that his troops "could be in Jidda," the second Saudi capital near the sea coast, "in no By Joseph Alsop more than two or three days." In the last fortnight, Nasser has also quite disproportionately increased his shipments of his Soviet-provided arms into the Yemen. This suggests preparations to move on the ground against the Saudi Arabian border oasis of Najran, which Egyptian planes have already bombed. Finally, 20 tons of air-dropped Egyptian military equipment have been discovered in the empty desert near the Saudi port of Yenbo, which would be a logical target for an Egyptian landing bian Desert is still inadequately explained, but it has the look, at least, of being intended to prepare for a landing. Nasser's threat to invade Saudi Arabia puts a term of sorts, or at least ought to put a term, to what can only be called a Chester Bowles chapter of American diplomacy. The chapter began with Bowles's selection of an eminent Middle Eastern do-gooder. John Badeau, as Ambassador to cally sensitive Washington sees signs of trouble building up for President Kennedy. It is detectable in a new attitude among Republicans and an air of depression, or at least subduedness, among Democrats.

The reasons can be found in current headlines-Kennedy's budget and tax reduction program. the Soviet build-up in Cuba. French President Charles De-Gaulle's pronouncements seriously threatening the unity of the Western Allies.

None of these developments lend themselves to early, favorable solution and all of them reflect on the quality of presidential leadership-at home and abroad. Without taking sides in what is becoming a major political development, it is safe to say that the issues are so complex that public understanding is virtually out of the question.

This means that they'll probably be settled at the polls perhaps in 1964 when Kennedy must take himself and his pro-

TROUBLES PILE UP - Politi- gram to the people for ratifica-

A few short weeks ago, the political assessment was that the 1964 GOP presidential nomination wasn't worth a plugged nickel. Now, there's a change in attitude, people aren't so willing to write off the Republican candidate two years before the elections.

Should Kennedy's popularity diminish, and should some of these problems-or others yet to develop-have an unfavorable impact on the Democratic administration, there will undoubtedly be a further shift away from a belief that the outcome of the 1964 presidential elections is a foregone conclusion.

Republican presidential aspirants who up to now have toyed with the idea of playing a waiting game and letting "someone else" run against Kennedy in 1964, are taking a second look at this strategy.

In any event, two years before elections, what has always been true is becoming apparent—there's no such thing as certainty in polimaking warm friends with the Egyptian dictator, who has never cy-makers, the blame for Nasser's broken promise is given to the British rather than to the promise-breaker, on the ground that Nasser really would have called home his troops if the British had followed the Americans in recognizing the Yemeni puppets. "If you can believe that, you can believe anything," is the only possible comment. By the same token, the head of the Saudi government, Prince Prince Faisal's contention, that a Nasserite Yemen will be a dagger at Saudi Arabia's heart, has been airily dismissed. It has even been contended that Nasser's Yemeni puppets will help to show Prince Faisal the road to progress and reform.

It can be seen, then, why it is fortunate that the President has taken the matter personally in hand. It is high time for a hard-headed judgment such as the President can be expected to make.

The stakes in this game, after all, are the important American interest in Saudi Arabia, the equally important American interest in neighboring Kuwait, and the British interest in Kuwait, which is, almost literally, a matter of economic life-or-death for Britain. Hard-headedness is certainly in order.

Oedipus For Laughs

By John Crosby

"Tells Why He Slew 5," screams the headline in the Milwaukee Sentinel, a newspaper I worked on back in the Stone Age. This caper was all about a 16-year-old track star (good, clean-looking kidthere was a picture of him) who mowed down his father, stepmother, two stepsisters, one stepbrother, in Green Bay, Wis.

"Felt Enmity Toward Family," said the subhead. It doesn't seem quite enough. We've all felt enmity toward father, mother and the siblings, but my generation didn't get down to the rifle so readily. A week or so earlier, another cleanlooking kid from Birmingham, Mich., planted a sniper scare in the community in order to divert suspicion from himself, then killed his mother. Well, I just got back from abroad. Maybe I'm oversensitive. But it does seem to me that every time I come back, somebody has just killed his mother. Or his father. Or wiped out the whole family. Murder is getting so intramural in America, so incestuous. My generation used to kill somebody else's mother. Your own mother you wrote songs about. "Put it all together. It spelled M-O-T-H-E-R." There used to be a television show called "I Remember Mama," full of kind thoughts about motherhood. Next year, the way things are going, they'll have a show called "I Hated Mama" and they'll play it for laughs.

Actually, they're playing matricide for laughs - well, kind of for laughs, kind of for serious - on Broadway in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," by young Edward Albee, which may be the most exciting theater to come along since the early Tennessee Williams.

I have followed the progress of young Albee with increasing but dismayed admiration ever since "The Zoo Story" and I have noticed his hatred of mothers has broadened, deepened, and grown more complicated with each passing play. In this one, the hero (if that's the word) has written a book about a guy who shoots his

NEW YORK mother and kills his father in an automobile accident. Then the same character kills his imaginary

> Well, it's a million laughs. Albee has filled the Billy Rose stage with four people who are always there. They are marvellously alive, terribly present at every minute. For a play that has almost no outward action in it, this one preserves an inner tension that never lets up for its long, long three - hour - and - 15 - minute

> I came prepared to hate "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," partly because I was sick of people stopping off in Paris to tell me how good it was, and I was, instead, captivated by all those flashing poniards. Two husbands and two wives sticking knives in each other for three hours. One would flee screaming from a house where this takes place. But we pay $6.90 to go see it in a theater.

> The audience at the Billy Rose is almost more interesting than the play and the players. They're with it al lthe way, laughing their heads off, as those four marrieds clam, scratch, bite, kick, and clobber each other. This generation of playgoers has been so thoroughly conditioned by Freud, by sick jokes, by sick headliners "Tells Why He Slew 5") that you can't shock it any more. The big problem is to keep it awake.

> What is last generation's shock is this generation's big boff. Next generation, which is five years away, it'll belong to television "I Murdered Mama" with Lucille

> Mr. Albee's superb dialogue is mouthed by a superb cast. There are only four people in his play and the four players-Uta Hagen, Arthur Hill, Ben Piazza, and Melinda Dillon - are all wonderfully electric and, somehow in this neurotic modern world, sympathetic. They are the people next door, modern style. This is domestic comedy, 1963. Next to it, "Private Lives" by Noel Coward would sound like Jane Austen.

Don Hoak Predicts Phils Will Finish Higher Than Pittsburgh

Traded Player Says Bucs Have Question Marks

Opines It's Not Impossible To Go From 7th To First

By MILTON RICHMAN UPI Sports Writer

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI)-Don Hoak says there is no maybe about it, he's "absolutely positive" the Philadlphia Phillies will finish higher than the Pittsburgh Pirates this year.

"There is no question whatsoever in my mind about it." said the scrappy 35-year - old third baseman. "And believe me I'm saying it simply because Pittsburgh traded me over here.

"Man for man we have a better ball club than the Pirates.' he said, intently watching his new Philadelphia teammates taking batting practice from a vantage point in the dugout.

"Pittsburgh has a lot of question marks. Joe Brown (General manager of the Pirates) has said the 1963 Pittsburgh club is the best he has ever had. That's taking in a whole lot of territory. I wonder if he still remembers the 1960 Pirates won the world championship.

Hoak insists he is neither bitter nor hurt over the late November deal which sent him to the Phillies for outfielder Ted Savage and first baseman Frank Herrera.

'Happy' About Trade

"You have no idea how happy I was to come over here," he said. "The fellow who manages this club, Gene Mauch, is my kind of guy.

"Not that I had a kick in the world playing for Danny Murtaugh. He is tops in my book. In the four years I played for him at Pittsburgh he never got on me "And I can't grumble about being unappreciated in Pittsburgh. either. I was the highest paid Pirate player, or one of the highest, anyway. They did all right by me: "You think I'm talking through my hat by saying we'll finish higher than they will. We'll see. This is a better ball club. I guarantee it. And in this league it impossible to go from seventh place to first Winning isn't easy. It's hard but it can be done. It takes long hours and hard work. The manager can't take you and the general manager can't take you.

You have to take them. Hoak, probably one of the greatest competitors in the game slumped to .251 last season but promises it won't happen again.

Last Year 'Lousy' "A lot of people said I had a lousy year," he said. "I did. I don't think I'll ever hit that bad again in my life. But I still led the league in fielding. "The Phillies aren't expecting me to hit .330. I know I'll have a good year even though some people are saying I'm 35 and I've had it. I read somewhere in the papers where I'm expected to play 125 games. Hell, I came here to play 162 and I will. "I played three straight years for Pittsburgh without missing a game. Then when I finally did, I didn't ask out. Warren Giles put me out, for bumping an umpire.' Hoak always spoke his mind with the Pirates and undoubtedly MANCHESTER England (UPI) -Southpaw Davie Charnley, the lightweight champion, British scored a knockout over Joe Brown at 2:45 of the sixth round of their bout at the Bellevue Arena Monday night before a capacity crowd of 6,500.

The 27-year-old Dartford, England, hairdresser, who weighed 136 pounds, was the aggressor throughout, and had the 37-yearold former lightweight champion from Houston, Tex., on the retreat throughout the bout. Brown weighed 1341/4.

A left hook to the jaw stopped Brown as he came in at the start of the sixth round, and he hurriedly clinched.

Brown Counted Out

Charnley followed up and caught Brown with both hands and the American fell on to the ropes, slipped to his knees, and propped up with his elbows over the middle ropes, was counted

Charnley, much sharper than in previous bouts, forced the fight from the opening round, making good use of right hooks and left jabs.

Brown tried hard to counter with long lefts to the head, only to have Charnley wade in with a two-fisted attack to the body, which the former world title holder tried to meet with left and right counters to the head.

In the fifth Brown proved an elusive target as Charnley bore in, and scored with short punches to the body. The Briton kept up his attack and gradually weakened Brown, who was but a "shadow" of the fighter who twice had beaten Charnley.

The win was a big boost for Charmley, who has had 55 bouts with 45 wins, compared to Brown's 117 fights with 84 wins and 10 draws. The victory also 7 o'clock and Moorefield will op-
